VOLUME XXXVI. NO. 154 SEYMOUR, INDIANA, SATURDAY, JUNE 16, 1917. PRICE TWO CENTS

COUNTY COUNCIL OF DEFENSE MEETS

Capt. D. B. Vance, of Brownstown, is Named Chairman, and Mrs. D. A. Kochenour Secretary.

ANOTHER MEETING ON JUNE 26

Request will be Made of State Council Regarding More Effective Method to Proceed.

The county council of defense, recently appointed by Judge Swails, met this morning at the court house at Brownstown and organized, electing Capt. D. B. Vance, of Brownstown, chairman, and Mrs. D. A. Kochenour, also of Brownstown, secretary. All but two of the members were present.

No definite program of work was adopted, it being the sense of the committee that they should await instructions or suggestions from the state council before outlining their program. The secretary was instructed to write to State Chairman Will Hays, asking for suggestions as to how to proceed most effectively. Another meeting was called for Tuesday, June 26th., when the suggestions of the state council will be considered, and a definite program of work arranged.

The members of the county council are as follows: Capt. Vance, Judge O. H. Montgomery, Harry Henderson, county superintendent-elect, J. B. Purkhiser, Sherman Hall, John E. Hunsucker and Mrs. Kochenour.

Circulars were distributed outlining in a general way what the county council is to undertake. Eleven recommendations are made as follows:

1. Promote the patriotic spirit of the people and seek to educate them as to the magnitude of the task ahead.
 2. Aid in recruiting for the National Guard.
 3. Aid in recruiting for the regular army.
 4. Promote the success of conscription.
 5. Aid in determination of questions of exemption from the draft.
 6. Aid in getting idle workmen and boys below military age to help on the farms.
 7. Aid in every possible way the successful flotation of the Liberty Loan.
 8. Aid the county committees that are engaged in the promotion of farming.
 9. Urge the production to the utmost of staple, non-perishable food crops.
 10. Conduct campaigns to reduce waste in the home.
 11. Later, aid in the formation of Home Guards.
- From the above it is evident that much of the work outlined for the county defense council is already well in hand through the early organization of the volunteer organization known as the Jackson County Food Commission. The two organizations, however, can co-operate for the successful completion of the big problems growing out of the war.

LOUISVILLE MOTORISTS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Speeding Car Has Close Call From Smashing Into Southeastern Freight—No One Hurt.

A large touring car, carrying a party from Louisville, had a narrow escape from a serious smash-up at the Ewing street crossing of the C. T. H. & S. E. Ry. about 11:30 o'clock this morning. The car was being driven north on Ewing street at a speed, according to spectators, of from 35 to 40 miles per hour, when a cut of cars from a Southeastern freight train blocked its path. The driver threw on his brakes and managed, by a desperate attempt, to turn the car completely around just before reaching the train. As it was, the extra tire and the rear lamp were torn off by the first of the cut of cars. After a hasty visit to a garage the motorists continued on their trip. Their names could not be learned.

NAMES ENGINEER FOR COMMISSION

W. H. Rights, City Engineer, Appointed to Important Place with State Highway Department.

TO BEGIN NEW WORK AT ONCE

Local Man has Exceptional Qualifications for Position—Successor Here is Not Named.

W. H. Rights, who has served as city engineer since August, 1915, has been appointed engineer for the state highway commission and will assume his new duties Monday. He was notified several days ago that he had been chosen for the position, but public announcement of the appointment was withheld until today. His services in an official capacity with this city ended today and he will go to Indianapolis Sunday night or early Monday morning to enter upon his new work with the department that was created by the last state legislature.

Although several other engineers will be appointed by the commission it is understood that Mr. Rights will be the only engineer to be appointed for probably six months. The engineering department will be in charge of a chief engineer, a highway engineer, a bridge engineer and several division engineers. The local man will probably take over the work of the highway engineer after the department is completely organized.

The highway commission will soon undertake the task of designating the principal market highways in the state. In order to do this a large number of maps and profiles for each county and for the state-at-large will be prepared. The principal highways to the market centers of Indiana will form the basis of the new highway construction system which will be mapped out. The importance of the preliminary work to be undertaken by the engineer and the department, therefore, is apparent.

Mr. Rights is exceptionally well qualified for his new position. He has made a particular study of highway construction and has given most of his time to that work. He is careful and accurate and is generally regarded as one of the most efficient

CAKE SALE REALIZES NEAT SUM FOR THE RED CROSS

Prizes Awarded For Four Best Cakes Entered in Interstate Co. Contest.

Between $25 and $30 will be realized for the local chapter of the Red Cross from the sale of the cakes entered in the contest conducted yesterday by the Interstate Public Service Company. The sale was conducted last evening following the announcement of the prizes. H. G. Stratton acting as auctioneer.

First prize, a $35 gas range, was awarded to Mrs. Charles Wolters, North Ewing street. Second prize, a gas water heater, was awarded to Mrs. Ed. Bryan, South Walnut street. Third prize, a gas room heater, went to Mrs. J. H. Darling, North Ewing street, and fourth prize, an electric iron, to Mrs. R. O. Mayes. The judges who made the awards were as follows: Mrs. Ida Van Horn, of Indianapolis; Mrs. George Winkenhof, Miss Grace Trotter, Mrs. Mary Galbraith and Mrs. Albert Doane. Announcement of the awards was made by Miss Kate Andrews.

Probably never before was such a tempting collection of cakes entered in a contest as the judges had to decide between last night. The large salesroom, which was beautifully lighted and decorated with huge bouquets of flowers, was crowded to capacity during the evening. As a reward for their effective work for the Red Cross, the Boy Scouts were invited guests for the evening, following their regular meeting, and enjoyed a repast of cake and cream.

The cake contest is an annual affair with the local office of the Interstate Company, and the one this year was probably the most successful one that has ever been held.

GAME WARDENS TO GUARD SQUIRRELS

Season Closed Against Hunting Until August 1, Under Law of Last Legislature.

FORMERLY OPENED ON JULY 1

Deputy Game Commissioner Gives Warning That Illegal Hunting Will not be Permitted.

Fred Ehlers, deputy fish and game commissioner, is spending several days in Jackson county and is giving his attention to the enforcement of the law for the protection of squirrels. He calls attention to the new law which was enacted by the last legislature which provides that the open hunting season will not begin until August 1, a month later than under the original law. For years the hunters have been killing squirrels after July 1. The new law provides that the open season will begin August 1 and will continue until the first day of December.

Commissioner Ehlers also calls attention to the fact that the hunting licenses were printed when the old law was in force and that the provision regarding the hunting of squirrels printed thereon is not official since the amendment was made by the last Indiana legislature. He says that the department did not request this change in the law, but that he believes it is a good protection of the young squirrels. Many of the young squirrels, he said, are not old enough to feed themselves by the first of July and die when the female squirrels are killed.

The commissioners are giving their attention to the enforcement of the law and say that while they do not desire to prosecute anyone they have positive instructions to enforce the law. "We only have one course open to us," said Ehlers this afternoon. "When we find men unlawfully hunting squirrels we must arrest them. There is no reason, however, why any arrests should be made. We are trying to give everyone ample notice of the change in the law so that no one can plead ignorance." He said he did not look for any trouble in this vicinity.

Ehlers said that the laws governing fishing were being observed in this vicinity better than for a number of years. The commissioners have destroyed a large number of traps and some seines in the local streams in the last five years and declare that they have received very few reports of unlawful fishing from this county.

SEYMOUR TO HONOR OLD GLORY TUESDAY NIGHT

Planned to Have Veterans of Civil War Fire Salute as Flag is Hoisted on Pole.

The formal ceremony to honor the flag when it is raised to the top of the municipal flag pole for the first time will be held next Tuesday night, according to plans which were announced by James Demas, who collected the funds for the erection of the pole. He announced that the veterans of the Civil War, the Boy Scouts and citizens will meet on Ewing street at 7 o'clock Tuesday night and headed by the Seymour Concert Band, which is to furnish the music without charge, will march to Chestnut street and then to the city building. The ceremony will take place around the pole. In the parade the veterans will carry the flag.

After the flag is ready to be hoisted a short prayer will be pronounced after which a brief address will be given. At the conclusion of the speech the band will strike up the "Star Spangled Banner" and the flag will be raised by the veterans. Another address will afterwards be delivered. Mr. Demas reports that he lacks $8.90 of having sufficient money to defray all expenses and that if anyone wishes to help make up the deficit the contributions can be left at the Sparta. The list of contributors is kept in a book which will be placed on file at the city library for the inspection of the public.

LAST QUARANTINE FOR SMALLPOX LIFTED TODAY

City Board of Health Reports That Epidemic Has Been Entirely Wiped Out in Township.

The last smallpox quarantine was lifted today and for the first time for several weeks the township is entirely free of the epidemic. The quarantine which was removed today was at a home in Woodstock where several cases were reported after the quarantine in the city was lifted. At one time there were more than sixty cases under quarantine in Woodstock alone.

The city health board reports that the epidemic has been entirely eradicated and that with proper attention there is little danger of its re-appearing. However, it is emphasized that there is some danger of it breaking out within a year unless vaccination is enforced and other precautions are exercised. Although a number of cases were reported during the last three months but few of them were serious. The mild form in which the disease appeared at first was responsible for the spread of the epidemic.

An Appreciation.

I desire to thank all the ladies who entered cakes in our annual contest, and our only regret was that every one could not win one of the prizes. The knowledge, however, that they have helped one of the very best causes, the Red Cross, will, we hope, be sufficient recompense for all, as it is for us.

REVOLUTION MAY BE ON IN SPAIN

Another National Drama May be Occurring in That Country Behind Curtain of Censorship.

NEWS SILENCED FOUR DAYS

When Censorship Was Made Effective Premier Had Denied That a Garrison Had Revolted.

By United Press. London, June 16—Behind the Spanish censorship another national drama may be occurring.

Vague reports of an assumption of power over the whole nation by the army have been received here. No direct word has been received from Spain for four days.

When the censorship curtain dropped a crisis was imminent between the premier and the army leaders. One of the last dispatches received direct from Madrid quoted the premier in denial of a report that one garrison had revolted.

Spain has been a hotbed of German propaganda and all British newspapers today attributed much of Spain's internal dissension directly to the activity of German agents.

AMERICAN SCHOONER IS DAMAGED BY SHELL FIRE

State Department Informed That The Ritter is Attacked but Crew is Rescued.

By United Press. Washington, June 16.—The American schooner Ritter was attacked by a German submarine and damaged by shell fire, the state department was informed today. Although badly shattered by shells from the U-boat, the ship was not sunk and was towed into port. Other dispatches to the state department stated the Petrolite crew is safe. All of the missing men of this torpedoed vessel have been landed.

JAPAN SPURNS SUGGESTION

Refuses to Co-operate With U. S. in Settling Chinese Trouble.

By United Press. Washington, June 16.—Japan has turned down the American request that she join the United States in her recent advice to China to compose her internal difficulties. This fact developed officially today following receipt of advices that Great Britain also had spurned the American suggestion for joint action in the Chinese situation.

SOCIALISTS GIVE OUT PEACE TERMS

German Representatives at Stockholm Meeting Outline Their Plans for Settling The War.

NO INDEMNITY FOR BELGIUM

Complete Political and Military Independence for All Nations—Return of Colonies.

By United Press. Stockholm, June 16—What may be considered to approximate the German government's peace terms were outlined here today when the German Socialists gave out the program for peace which will be urged at the Socialists convention here.

The demands are: No indemnity for Belgium because it would be difficult to determine which belligerents were responsible for damage on the various fronts.

Return of the German colonies under the policy of "no annexations." Retention by Germany of Alsace-Lorraine—"because they are actually German."

Complete political and military independence for all nations.

Germany is to agree with Austria regarding the future of Serbia and other Balkan countries.

Poland and Finland's future is to be left to the determination of those provinces themselves.

FARMERS ARE NOT EXEMPT FROM MILITARY SERVICE

President to Issue Proclamation Setting Forth Regulations of Exemptions.

By United Press. Washington, June 16—Farmers are not exempt from military service.

To dispel the widespread impression that men engaged in agricultural pursuits are exempted from the draft, officials today reiterated that only "indispensable men" will be exempted.

Men who can serve the nation better as a soldier than in industrial or other occupations will be called to the colors unless it works a hardship upon their dependents. In a proclamation of exemption regulations to be issued within a few days, President Wilson will make provision for determining who are and who are not the indispensable men.

The proclamation places whole power to pass upon the occupational claims for exemption in the hands of the appellate exemption boards.

PERSHING PAYS VISIT TO FRENCH HEADQUARTERS

American General Completes Detail Work by Going to Office an Hour Earlier.

By United Press. Paris, June 16—Major-General John J. Pershing cleaned up pressing business at the American headquarters early today and later motored to headquarters of General Petain, chief general of the French armies. He will return to Paris late today. He was accompanied by several of his staff officers.

Pershing was able to complete his detail work earlier than usual by reaching the office an hour before the French headquarters are swept out. He will confer with General Petain regarding the American army.

TABULATE OVER SUBSCRIPTION

Believed That Subscription of Liberty Bonds May Reach $2,800,000,000.

By United Press. Washington, June 16—Overwhelmed by the rush of the last minute Liberty Loan Bond subscribers, the treasury department today wired the tabulators to work throughout the night to determine the amount of the over-subscription. Reports indicated that the loan would probably exceed $2,800,000,000. Officials believe that $3,000,000,000 Liberty Bonds may be required.

WHOLE TOWNS ARE ERASED BY SHELLS

Merciless Destruction Illustrates Why British Soldiers Want Retribution Against the Boche.

"TOMMY" REPAIRS ROADS

Orchards Are Ruin in Retreat but Drive and Unproductive Forests Are Left.

(By J. W. Pegler, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

With the British Armies in the field, June 16.—Whole towns erased by dynamite, orchards sheared off at the ground and towering rows of road-side trees methodically felled—these scenes of merciless destruction illustrate why the British soldier wants retribution against the Boche.

Tommy goes ahead repairing the roads and clearing the debris from village streets, admitting that it was military good sense for the enemy to obstruct the lines of pursuit.

But the Germans said they did these things to prevent the concealment of troops. And the soldier reasons in this way: The Boche aeroplane never get over anyway to observe where the troops are massing. So what difference could it make whether they have concealment? Also, the Boche was careful to ruin orchards, but he left many acres of dense but unproductive woods.

What's the answer? Strafe 'em. Peronne Cathedral refutes the plea of military necessity. Dynamite blew out the east wall and two sides and brought the dome crashing amid the prostrate stone columns. Today the interior is a mountain of hopeless wreckage. On its sagging balcony the pipe organ sings the ghost of a peace-time anthem as the May breeze goes sougling through the valves. The pipes jangle as a brick is dislodged and tumbles to the floor. Far away the guns boom.

The British never shelled the church. The remaining west wall is not scarred by shell fragments. It was left standing to hamper British observation.

At the outskirts of the town lies Peronne Cemetery where the Boche dug in among the dead. Corpses were thrown into bonfires and the vaults occupied by German officers as dug-outs. Two trench lines run straight through the cemetery.

Military necessity made the enemy smash the door of a French family tomb where six dead had slept for many years. The coffins remained exposed.

Two French guard regiments with a little feud between them went into the cemetery on the heels of the Boche. The first arrivals found one coffin bored by a machine-gun bullet from the direction of their advance. This message was on the white-washed wall:

"The Boche may have had dug-outs here but he didn't shoot the hole in the far-off coffin."

To which the late-comers scribbled this reply:

"Neither did they write on the walls, you blackguards."

Strewn with the fragments of head-stones and battlefield junk are countless bead-work wreaths, placed by mourners in days of peace. "A Notre Chere Grandmère," said the inscription on one. Grandmère's grave may be one of those pried open.

At the edge of the cemetery was a very little grave, carpeted blue with forget-me-nots. The headstone said Madeline was only four years old. The Boche had not touched it. Nearby, a row of wooden "Iron Crosses," each inscribed "Under Kamerade," gave proof that the German cadaver factory lost some raw material through sentiment.

At Arras the Cathedral and the Hotel de Ville are smashed beyond possible restoration. Only a small corner of the hotel survives as a memory of that grand specimen of Spanish architecture.

Bapaume is a hideous shell, although the Australians have cleared up the streets. Here an Australian, peacefully tending a cooking stew, told how the Boche hate goes mad at times.

"A German naval gun tried to shell us now and again," he said. "But the gunners must be crazy, judging from the way they shoot." The road toward Albert runs through the country where the British artillery first discovered its strength. Ruin stretches for miles. On top of the Butte de Warlencourt is a wooden monument by a British regiment erected to their comrades who died storming the country. There is not the slightest trace of the town. With a field-glass abandoned tanks may be sighted on this old battle-field, one of them labelled in Russian "Petrograd."

It is inconceivable to the battle-field tourist that this country was green farmland and woods, dotted with villages before the Boche came. The famous bronze statue of the Virgin still hangs from the steeple of the church at Albert. The surviving French townspeople are sure it will never fall. That is their faith.

The Allied armies and America's men are their hope.

Maybe there will be charity after the war—but for the present retribution.

MARGARET MASON'S FASHION LETTER

(Whitten for United Press)

"Darling," sighed the knitting needle, "Wool you marry me?"

But Miss Zephyr Yarn so fluffy, Nought but "Knit," said she.

Talk about the wild and woolly west, it isn't in it for wildness and wooliness with the effete East these days. You'll find all the feminine wits on Fifth Avenue have gone wool gathering and now have their hands full. In limousines, taxis and on tops of the busses, socks, mufflers and chest protectors are growing for soldiers and sailors.

I even encountered several strolling ladies with their knitting all ready for business in one hand, not even under cover of a hand bag. They held it thus in the open so they could take advantage of any little stopovers and waits for traffic to take a few stitches, en passant as it were. Most woolly enthusiasts have their mufflers muffled or their chest protectors protected in one of the gay cretonne knitting bags when not in active use.

The array of these bags is positively fascinating! So much so that even the most rabid of anti-knitting would be glad to yank a hank of yarn and a pair of needles and get busy just in order to bag a bag.

They are evolved from the brightest bits of cretonne and figured linen trimmed in cords, tassels or galoon and varicolored satin apples, fringes, festoons and frills. Some more ornate, are of silk and satin trimmed in French ribbon flowers. Attached to the tall walking sticks they are most handy for those who walk while they work.

All the wool gathering isn't being done for the military or the marines though, by any manner of means. It takes three skeins to make a regulation army or navy muffler, but it is hard to gauge just how much it takes to trim and fringe milady's dress of jersey cloth, serge or georgette crepe. To be a really successful frock it must have wool embroidery around the hem, the cuffs, the neck, the pockets and the belt. There are yarn tassels too and yarn fringe to finish well and woolly.

Wool doesn't even stop at outer garments but invades the realm of lingerie. It is a far cry from the woolen lingerie of 1917 to the aesthetic red and grey woolen union suits our parents used to make us don when we were young and helpless. Today envelope chemises, nighties and combinations of salmon pink, purple or turquoise blue Georgette crepe are embroidered lavishly in yarn of divers hues. This modernist underwear is certainly right up to scratch.

Smocks and slip over blouses of Georgette crepe are also fulsomely darned. Even some of the smartest new bathing suits have the habit with cunning little yarn fringes around their abbreviated skirts and bobbing yarn tassels on this pockets and topping the smart and rakish bathing caps. It is to be hoped, however, that a generous cake of wool soap will accompany each wool embroidered mermaid when she goes in for her dip.

Dame Fashion is actually trying to pull the wool over our eyes as is evidenced by the new yarn embroidered and bordered veils that float in the breeze from our close little hats.

Then there are the hats themselves. Of course they are numbered among the woolly ones, and parasols revel in raveled yarn fringes, and unfurl their knitting new under the sun.

Collar and cuff sets of Georgette crepe, button holed around their edges in bright toned wool are most effective, and jabots, wool garnished, are neck and neck with latest summer modes. Jabots of all sorts, by the way, are very much to the front and spill their frilly froth of lace and cascades of chiffon crepe over the smartest of tailored lapels. Of finely pleated organdies, batiste and muslin bordered in the narrowest of Irish crochet, Cluny or fllet edge they are chic, though the filmy lace ones are the loveliest of all.

But to return to our mufflers or rather the outside of them which is the wool, we mustn't forget the yarn

MOST REMARKABLE RAILROAD IN CHILE

Fifty miles inland from Valparaiso is the city of Santiago, the capital of Chile and the fourth South American city in population. From its broad central avenue, the Alameda, lined with statues and four rows of trees, one can look upon mountains crowned with perpetual snow. From here the transcontinental tourist departs for the ride over the Trans-Andean railroad, the first rail line to conquer the tremendous Andean barrier, and probably the most wonderful feat of railroad engineering in the world.

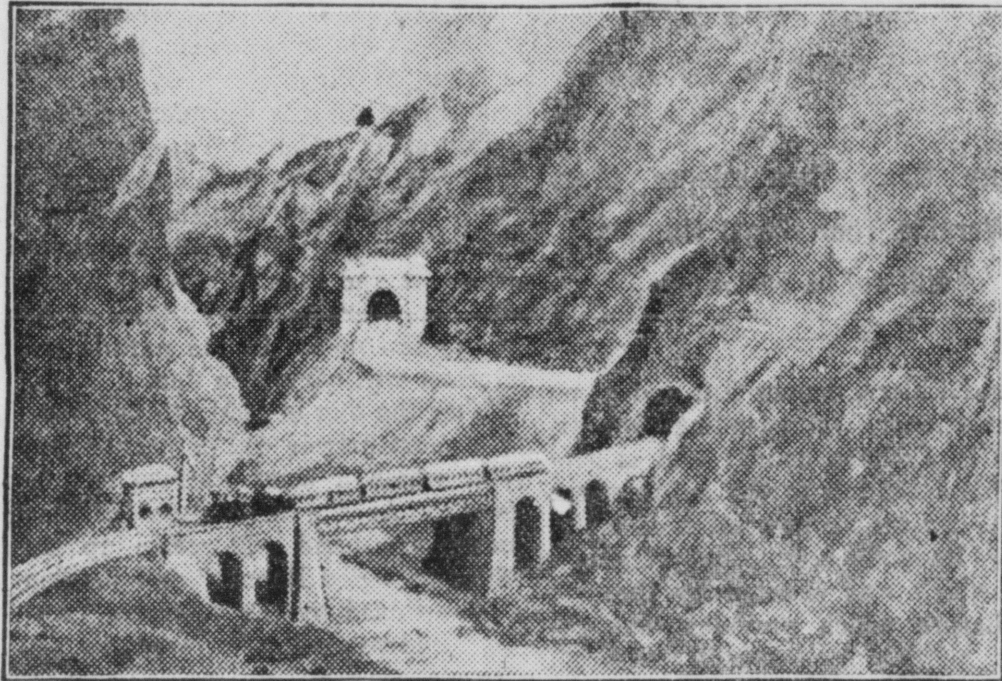

The passenger making this trip will have an experience never to be forgotten. To quote a writer: "If any other trunk line of railroad traverses a region so extraordinary, it has not yet been described."

Penetrating deep valleys, beside rushing torrents, clinging to the perpendicular sides of precipices a thousand feet deep, stretching by 118 eerie bridges over vast chasms, plunging through 25 tunnels, climbing the slopes of snowy peaks 15,000 and 22,000 feet in elevation, ascending far above the timber line, the train finally passes over the Continental Divide, at 10,400 feet elevation in a three-mile tunnel, and then descends to the fertile plains of the Argentine.

No greater transition could be experienced. Behind are the mountains and in front limitless prairies.

Unparalleled scenic grandeur has been left behind and a world devoted to agriculture and commerce entered.

embroidered negligees, house gowns and robes intine in our resume of yarn decked wearing apparel. They are all quite exotically and erotically woolly.

From all of which it is plain to be seen that a 1917 reversion of Mother Goose's famous ditty is badly needed now, to run about like this:

Street Commission Brown had a force of men at work today repairing the street at the entrance of the alley on Chestnut street between St. Louis Avenue and Second street. The repairs were ordered by the council at the last session. The work was to be done on Saturday so that the alley would not be blockaded longer than necessary. The street can be used again by Monday. The alley entrance has been in bad condition for some time and after rains pools of water stood in the street.

It is not too early now for the war gardener to begin thinking about canning his surplus products, says today's bulletin from the National Emergency Food Garden Commission cooperating with this newspaper in urging food production and conservation.

Not only the garden surplus should be canned, but when vegetables are plentiful in the markets, the patriotic housewife will help save civic waste by preserving all the vegetables that her purse will allow. If vegetables are high in price the plea is likely to be made that it does not pay to can them. But this year, when every ounce of food saved counts in the great total, cost of preservation should not be taken into consideration as a barrier to thrift. If vegetables are expensive now, think what they will be when the snow flies!

The average housekeeper, when told to can vegetables, is likely to throw up her hands in despair. This will be because she does not know the latest discoveries of science in food canning. She knows only the old way of "putting up" perishables—by cooking them thoroughly and then packing them in cans. This method is not successful with most vegetables. It is not too successful with fruit, as many a housekeeper can testify who has gone to the fruitshelf in winter to find some of her choicest jars moldy, sour, or working. And the old method is costly, too, because it demands rich syrups and heavily spiced mixtures.

The latest development in food canning is by sterilization. Under this system fruits and vegetables, well or slightly cooked as the case may be, are preserved by a process which kills all germ life in the cans after they are completely or partially sealed.

It is cheaper and easier to preserve food by sterilization than by the old cooking method of canning, and, moreover, it is even easier to put up vegetables than fruits by this method. In succeeding bulletins will be given the directions for home sterilization.

HER DEATH NEAR

Newton, Mo.—"I can certainly speak a good word for Cardui, the woman's tonic," says Mrs. Jay Rhoades, of this town. "I suffered for 12 years with my right side, and the last three years, I would have a bad spell with it about every three months. I would get so bad off, every one would think I could not live."

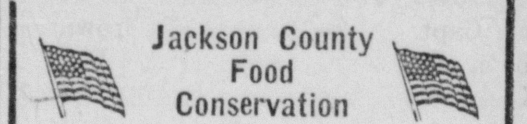

The first of July, I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I haven't had a bad spell since soon after I began taking it.

Before taking Cardui, I was so irregular, and, at times, I could hardly stand on my feet. Now, I can clean house, and do any kind of work without its hurting me in the least.

Cardui will surely do for other women, what it did for me. I am telling all my neighbors about it."

Cardui is a mild and effective tonic for women, that has been found, by actual use, during more than 50 years, to relieve the ailments to which all women are peculiarly liable.

RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL SHAVED TO THE BONE

Measure Carrying $26,700,000 Will be Passed After Food Control Bills Are Adopted.

By United Press

Washington, June 16—The Rivers and Harbors bill is this year shaved to the bone. It was never thus before. Navigation appropriations were always the most promising items of "pork" in the Congressional barrel.

The bill was reported out of the committee May 9 and is scheduled to be considered by Congress after food control measures are adopted. It carries an appropriation of $26,700,000. Every item this year was estimated by the War Department. Other items may be added on the floor but each must be approved by Secretary Baker. Only projects of absolute necessity are contemplated.

The President has indicated to Representative Small, South Carolina, chairman of the Rivers and Harbors Committee, that he will sign the bill as soon as it is passed, to expedite projects that are war measures.

Doctor Offered to Buy Back Medicine; Patient Wouldn't Sell

An inborn faith in his medicine, and a patient in the first stages of dropsy who had lost faith in drugs and doctors, was an unusual combination that prompted Dr. A. J. Hull, of Findlay, O., in offering to buy back the medicine he had prescribed for Mrs. A. H. Dutton. The absolute frankness of the doctor's proposition was responsible for her taking the medicine that restored her to health and happiness.

Four days after beginning treatment Mrs. Dutton was free from all pain and suffering, and in less than a week she had lost forty-five pounds of water, due to the dropsical condition she was in. To use her own words, Mrs. Dutton says: "Do you wonder I sing the praise of Hull's Superlative? I say most truthfully it was a godsend to me. I have never been without it, and as long as I live there shall always be a bottle of Hull's Superlative in my medicine case, and I shall always sing its praise, and my prayer shall always be that Dr. Hull may be spared yet for many years and that God's blessings may be lavished upon him and his greatest of all medicines, Hull's Superlative."

In the annals of medicine there is perhaps no stranger or more baffling case than that of Mrs. Dutton's, and should the reader desire the complete history of it, he has only to write to the A. J. Hull Medicine Company, of Findlay, O. This wonder-medicine has produced excellent results in colds, grips, tonsillitis, rheumatism, infantile and other forms of paralysis, stomach trouble, etc. All druggists sell Hull's Superlative for $1.00 a bottle.—Adv.

METHODS TO KILL PLANT PARASITES

State Entomologist Describes Remedies to Combat Worms which Damage Garden Vegetables.

SOME WORK UNDER LEAVES

Cut Worm Moth Can be Eradicated by Placing Poisoned Bran-Mash at Base of Plants.

Many of the local gardens have not only been retarded by the continuous rains and unfavorable weather, but have been damaged to some extent by worms and other parasites which make annual raids on growing vegetables and vines. Various methods of fighting the parasites have been suggested and the recommendations which have been made by Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, will be of interest. He explains the manner in which a number of the parasites work and the best remedy to rid the plants of them.

The entomologist's bulletin declares that the potato beetle lays the eggs under the surface of the leaf and that the plants will be killed if the beetles are permitted to work. The adult beetles live under the soil during the winter months and appear soon after the potato plants are growing. The remedy is described as a combination spray for insects and blight diseases. A pound of slacked lime dissolved in six gallons of water is the basis of the solution. Dissolve a pound of copper sulphate in six gallons of water and mix the solutions. Then add half a pound of powdered arsenate of lead. Spray plants first when five or six inches high and repeat every two or three weeks.

The cabbage looper can be killed with a solution as follows: One ounce of arsenate of lead or two ounces of paste dissolved in six quarts of water. Spray when the plants are young and repeat when necessary until the heads are half formed. After that dust the plants with dry powdered white hellebore in the mornings before the dew disappears. The hellebore will shake off easily and will not poison the cabbages. The cabbage looper develops from eggs which are laid under the surfaces of the leaves by a butterfly.

Another parasite that is described is the aphids which works on grapevines and rose stems. The aphids pierce the plants with their beaks and suck out the sap. Therefore, their food cannot be poisoned and they must be sprayed with a contact poison which must hit each bug to be effective. The remedy: Spray with nicotine. Use the commercial solutions of nicotine sulphate. One or two teaspoonfuls will make a gallon of spray. The liquid will spread better on the leaves if an ounce of soap dissolved in a little hot water is added. Be sure to spray under the surfaces of the leaves. Leaves on which the aphids work turn yellow and curl downward forming small pockets in which the pests are protected. It is necessary to use the spray before this happens.

The cutworm moth does much damage by eating off young plants at the base. They feed at night and hide away in the soil or under rubbish during the daytime. They are eradicated by luring them to a poison feed. This is described as follows: Put out a bait of poisoned bran mash made thus: Thoroughly mix one ounce of Paris green into one pound of bran. Make a quart of syrup of one third molasses and two-third water. Add half a lemon ground up. Stir the bran into a thick paste with the syrup. Scatter small amounts about the bases of the plants in the evenings. The worms will hide away to die. It is necessary that precaution is taken to prevent chickens from feeding on the bran mash.

BIG FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN WAGED BY THE RED CROSS

Indiana Asked to Raise $1,500,000 As Her Part of a Hundred Million Dollar Fund.

Indianapolis, June 16.—If you can't enlist for service in the field, if you haven't felt financially able to purchase a Liberty Bond, you can still do your bit toward helping win this great war in which Uncle Sam is about to throw every inch of his manhood, his brains and his muscle—you can lend your support to the American Red Cross.

In the great campaign which is going to be launched June 18, to sweep the state with whirlwind sweep for one week, every citizen, be he millionaire or humble wage-earner, will be asked to contribute to the fund of $1,500,000 which will be Hoosierdom's share in the mighty drive for $100,000,000 in America. Men and women of distinction in every part of the country have shouldered the burden of promoting this campaign. In the drive to reach a goal of $1,500,000, the congressional districts will be called upon to contribute to the fund by the following apportionment:

First district, $100,000; Second district, $62,000; Third district, $52,000; Fourth district, $61,000; Fifth district, $106,000; Sixth district, $81,000; Seventh district, $350,000;

Eighth district, $91,000; Ninth district, $95,000; Tenth district, $145,000; Eleventh district, $93,000; Twelfth district, $116,000; Thirteenth district, $148,000.

In making this apportionment the Indiana Red Cross leaders, based their calculations on the amounts pro-rated in the Y. M. C. A. campaigns for army extension work and for the sale of Liberty Bonds. According to the apportionment the per capita for Indianapolis citizens will be about $1.20. For a city approaching 75,000 in population the per capita will be from 75 to 90 cents. A population of 25,000 would be expected to show a per capita donation of 40 to 60 cents. In some sections of the state, not so prosperous, a low per capita of 15 to 20 is shown.

The slogan will be "Give what you can and the more the better." At Red Cross headquarters in Indianapolis, a large force under the direction of Director Arthur F. Bentley is working night and day working out the details for the campaign to start in every part of Indiana next Monday morning. Reports to headquarters show that county chapters are planning unusual activities. Red Cross leaders believe that all Hoosierdom will quickly respond to the mightiest appeal ever sent out in the state. The campaign committee of Indiana's Red Cross War Fund, of which Governor Goodrich is chairman, emphasizes the important point that all must give if the state is to do its proportionate share towards her fund. Henry P. Davison, of New York, chairman of the Red Cross Council, sends out this state-

A FALSE ALARM

Every Experienced Merchant Knows That Selling Cost Melts Before Advertising.

The government of the United States, through Congress assembled, was recently worked up over the cost of advertising.

The idea seemed to be to prove, if possible, that advertising adds to the cost of goods to the consumer.

Whereas every dealer who has done enough of it to know anything definite about it knows that advertising reduces the cost of goods to the consumer.

He knows that his prices are based on just two items: buying cost and selling expense.

He knows that selling expense is a big factor in his prices.

He knows that anything which cuts down the selling expense works to the advantage of the consumer, as well as to his own.

He knows that no one thing reduces his selling expense more than good, well-proportioned advertising.

He knows that this swells the ranks of his customers.

He knows that more customers mean more business.

He knows that greater volume of business means that he can prosper on a smaller margin of profit per sale.

He knows this because his "overhead"—rent, clerk hire, insurance, etc.,—is not raised.

He knows that this is demonstrated by the experience of every big advertising merchant in the world.

He knows that the store which advertises all the time and up to the limit of its possibilities can undersell the store which doesn't advertise at all.

Because—and he knows that this is its great big virtue—it cuts down the heavy item of selling expense.

He doesn't need to be told that one of the big manufacturers of an internationally used product recently estimated that the selling cost was more than 50 per cent. of the retail price of his product.

He knows that the concern which doesn't advertise works harder to sell goods—in proportion to what it sells—than the firm which does advertise.

He knows that this harder work costs good, hard money.

And he knows that the cost, whatever it is or however it is created, is paid for by the one who pays the retail price.

ment: "Excuses and evasions won't do. The man who has an income of $10,000 a year might as well make up his mind to give half of it to the Red Cross. That's the spirit the situation demands—no less."

Every man, woman and child in Indiana who answers the stirring call of the Red Cross, whatever be the extent of the sum donated, will have that consoling thought that he has done just a little bit toward heartening up our soldier allies across the sea or bringing some small comfort to the American soldier, soon to be in the trenches of Europe.

INDIANA "DRYS" PLEASED AT PROHIBITION PROSPECTS

State Highway Commission Spends Several Days in Tast—Other Capitol News.

By United Press.

Washington, June 16.—The delegation of Indiana "drys" that has been here several days working among members of the Indiana congressional delegation to secure support of national prohibition has expressed gratification over the prospect.

"We have every reason to believe," said Everett Neal of Noblesville, "that if the vote were taken now at least ten of the fifteen members of the Indiana delegation in the House and Senate would support prohibition as a war measure."

Louis Taylor of Newburg and L. H. Wright of Indianapolis, members of the Indiana Highway Commission, spent yesterday here investigating highways, and will go from here to Baltimore and Trenton, N. J.

Sara Louise Long, daughter of Maj. Byford Long, formerly secretary to Senator Shively and Senator Taggart, will be among sixty-five graduates at the Eastern high school here tomorrow.

FOLLOW UP.

By GEORGE M. ADAMS.

How common it is in games of football and other sports, some quick-thinking player dashes off a thrilling play, only to fall back for the remainder of the game into obscurity and be forgotten—and for no other reason than that he failed to—Follow Up.

Periodic Brillancy is not Success.

Follow Up. When you think a Worthy Thought, follow it up. When you do a Useful Thing, follow it up. When you strike an effective blow for a Right Cause, follow it up. It's the man with the Courage, first to start a thing and then follow it up, that after a while, has an accumulation of points that stamp him Great and Masterful. Follow up or else you will fall back.

Periodic Brillancy is not Success.

The Great man is simply the Small man become great. Every Great man at some time or other is the unknown, obscure man. Make your life count by compelling every single effort to figure in the final summing up. For after all, Success itself is nothing more nor less than work well performed and Followed Up day after day, year after year.

Periodic Brillancy is not Success.

I've Wished Time Away.

Since I can remember and all through my life, With its pleasures and sorrows, its troubles and strife, There's something we wanted. I must wait day by day, To come by it quickly, I've wished life away.

How in my school days I envied the men, And wished I were grown up, to be just like them. I was so impatient I could brook no delay; The time passed so slowly, I wished life away.

When I grew to a man, and I became married, With a family around me, and life's burden I carried, So hard did I labor, I scarcely could stay Till my day's work was done; I wished life away.

And now in my old age I look back with tears, On the time that is past, fully three score of years. I'm growing quite feeble, my hair's turned to gray, My race's about run; I've wished life away.

—William E. Burke.

Study of Food Values Will Aid The Housewife to "Do Her Bit" In Crisis

By MIRIAM M. HAYNES
Instructor in Colorado Agricultural College.

The patriotic American housekeeper, in striving to "do her bit" in the nation-wide campaign to conserve our food supply, finds herself confronted with the necessity of revising her methods of conducting her home.

While a home-maker may be convinced, and justly, that she is not wasteful, if she will examine her methods she will often find that she is extravagant. In the present national crisis, we need to practice the old-fashioned thrift and economy of our grandmothers in our homes. We are not advocating the eating of less food but we are urging less waste of food. The amount actually wasted in a home may seem small in each individual case, but when the waste goes on throughout the nation it counts up.

Fifty-seven varieties of food are not necessary for a well-balanced ration, in fact the 57 varieties may be present and a "square meal" absent. Let us, as home-makers, set about to be food conservators by—

1—Studying food values so as to plan economical and properly balanced meals.

2—Making use of meat substitutes such as cheese, milk, beans, peas, nuts. Make use of rice as a starchy food and corn as a breadstuff.

3—Eliminating over-eating and use of excessive and wasteful variety of foods.

4—Giving careful attention to canning, drying and proper storing of vegetables and fruits.

5—Starting simple systems of home accounts to check household "leaks" in business methods.

Hold to simple standards of living. Simplicity means the elimination of non-essentials.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL CLOSURES ITS FIRST WEEK

Eighty Pupils Enrolled and Spirit of Enthusiasm is Manifest in All the Departments.

The Daily Vacation Bible School which is being conducted at the First Baptist Church of this city reached an enrollment of eighty during the past week. The school opened last Monday with C. T. Sharp, of Franklin, as principal and an attendance of over fifty. This number has grown gradually until Friday's enrollment showed an attendance of eighty. There are seventeen in the High School Department, six in the Intermediate Department, twenty-six in the Junior Department, thirty-one in the Primary Department.

The entire week's work has been characterized by enthusiasm on the part of both teachers and pupils. The Bible stories, Bible drills, memory work, music, hand work and recreation have all been adapted admirably to the varying ages of the pupils. The teachers are working hard and efficiently and the pupils are greatly pleased with their work. One boy, who will necessarily be absent next week, got a list of the Bible stories and memory verses in advance so that when he comes back he will not be behind in his work.

In the hand work department the boys have already made three models of kites and other models will be planned for the coming week. The boys have taken two hikes during the week and both the girls and boys have picnics and outings planned for the coming week.

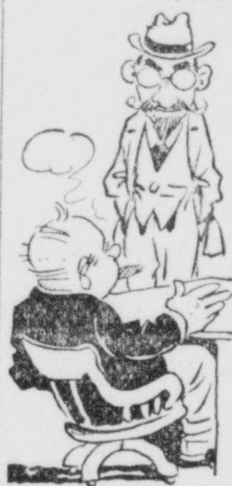

A number of citizens in town, outside of the Baptist Church, have expressed their interest in the school and some of their children are taking advantage of this opportunity which is offered freely to all who wish to attend.

Mr. Sharp, the principal, is greatly pleased with the first week's work. He is especially enthusiastic over the interest and cooperation which the teaching force has shown during the week. He says the Seymour church has supplied one of the most efficient teaching forces of any of the Vacation Schools in the state. The enthusiasm of the pupils also is a noteworthy feature. The teaching force is made up of Miss Edris Hughes, Miss Margaret Lewis and Miss Irene Green in the Kindergarten and Primary Department; Miss Mary Lewis and Miss Minnie Shepard in the Junior Department; Mrs. Walfred Lindstrom and Mr. C. T. Sharp in the Intermediate Department; Mrs. H. G. Stratton and Miss Fern Ritter in the Music Department and Rev. Charles L. Graham in the High School Department.

The attendance is not limited to Baptist pupils, but any children who wish to take the work will be welcome, and may enter next Monday morning for the remaining five weeks of the term. The school sessions are held five days of the week from 9 to 11:30 each morning. It is hoped that the enrollment may reach one hundred during the coming week.

SOME SMILES

Second Choice.

"I understand your son intends to devote his life to art."

"Well, he did intend to, but when I made it very plain to him that I had no intention of devoting any of my money to the cause, he gave it up and decided to go into the insurance business."

Not Woman's Friend.

"Sunlight is a great thing."

"It's no friend to woman."

"Why not?"

"See what it does to her complexion, and besides, they do say its chemical effect disintegrates the backing of mirrors in a comparatively short time."

High Cost of Wives.

"Don't you love me any more, Herbert?" asked his wife, in tears, after he had made a few caustic remarks about the dressmaker's bill.

"Yes, indeed," answered the bank that was usually broke. "You are very dear to me."

Strange.

Hicks—When I came out of church Sunday I found my horse tight asleep in the shed.

Wicks—Why, he couldn't hear the sermon out there, could he?

Explained.

"Dad," said the youngest and most inquisitive, "what is a flesh reducer?"

"The butcher is the most consistent," explained his dad. "He is able to reduce the quarter's worth a little each day."

The Reason.

"Whenever there is any trouble going on, people want to make me the goat."

"Then why don't you stop butting in?"

Strange Happening.

"I saw a man with a crowd around him, go up to another man and deliberately knife him without a single one's interfering."

"Was he a Black Hand?"

"No; he was a surgeon."

The New Way.

"Aren't you ashamed to let your wife run you out the house trying to beat you?"

"On the contrary, I have her at my mercy by executing a strategic retreat which has foiled all her plan of action."

The Lord on Salesman.

Lord Eustace Percy told at a reception a story about Lord Devonport, the British food controller.

"Lord Devonport," he said, "runs the largest chain of groceries in England. When he was a poor man, running only one provincial grocery, he hated ostentation and display."

A traveling salesman once dropped in on him in his little shop.

"I'm from London," the salesman said, haughtily. "I want to show you a line of London goods that will open your—"

"Where did you say you come from?" asked the humble grocer.

"London," said the salesman, proudly. "London, my man."

"London, eh?" The grocer smiled pleasantly. "Who runs the hotel in that town?"

engineers that has ever served this city. The city officials and council regrets that he is not to continue his work here but with the citizens congratulate him upon the promotion which comes in recognition of ability and training. He was appointed city engineer of this city in August, 1915, by Mayor Ross. Before coming here he was city engineer at Columbus, Mr. Rights is a graduate of Purdue University and his training for his life profession has been thorough.

Mayor Ross has not yet decided who will be chosen as Mr. Rights' successor. As soon as the retiring engineer was informed of his selection with the state commission he resigned so as to give the Mayor all the time possible to find a competent and capable successor. There is considerable work here at this time for an engineer and soon a large sewer will be constructed on Sixth and Bill streets. Mayor Ross will likely name a successor within a few days.

Memorial Day at Vernon.

On account of the Tornado of May 26, Memorial Day, May 30 was not observed at Vernon as usual, and the postponed program will be carried out on a larger scale tomorrow, Sunday, June 17. In the morning Rev. W. D. Cole will deliver a sermon for the veterans of the Civil War at the Presbyterian Church. In the afternoon patriotic exercises and an address by Hon. Frank E. Little, of North Vernon, will be given at the Court House after which soldiers, children and members of the secret orders following bands will march to the Vernon cemetery where the soldiers' graves will be decorated with flowers. Many persons from Jennings and adjoining counties have made arrangements to attend these patriotic services. A large crowd is expected.

ROOF MAY BE PLACED ON CHRISTIAN CHURCH SHORTLY

Contractor Expects New Building to be Under Cover by Latter Part of Next Week.

The construction work at the new Christian church building on North Chestnut street is progressing rapidly and the contractor expects to have the building under the permanent roof by the latter part of next week. After the building is covered the interior work will proceed without interruption from the weather. The Rev. Franklin P. Smith, pastor of the congregation, stated today that he believes the building will be ready for occupancy by the latter part of August or the first of September.

The contractor has experienced several serious delays since the work was started. The building materials did not arrive here when expected and this delayed the construction work for several weeks. However, the work has now reached a point where it is thought no further delay will be experienced and the building will be ready for dedication within less than ninety days. The organ which will be installed is in course of construction and will be shipped here as soon as the interior is completed. Other fixtures and equipment which have been made by special order for the new building will soon be ready for shipment, according to word received by the pastor.

BROWNSTOWN TO ENTERTAIN LEAGUERS JUNE 19-21

Exceptionally Strong Program Arranged for the Twenty-eighth Session of This District.

The twenty-eighth annual convention of the Epworth League of the Seymour district of the M. E. church will be held at Brownstown for three days next, beginning on Tuesday. The chapter there is busy making arrangements for the entertainment of the visiting delegates. About fifty league chapters are included in the district. Each chapter is expected to send two delegates, the pastor of the congregation, junior superintendent, and a junior delegate.

An excellent program has been arranged for the session. Various phases of the work of this department of the M. E. church will be discussed and the importance of the young people's services will be emphasized.

The Quiet Hour.

There are times when we need to be thrust back upon ourselves, to go "apart into a desert place." Isolation bids us find ourselves, and finding ourselves we grow sufficient within ourselves. We may have allowed people to crowd upon us, have given to them too much place and time, while we have forgotten or avoided our own imperative concerns by a fictitious interest in others. Alone in the desert Christ confronted the struggle. Thus we must all do; and the sooner we fight that crucial battle with self and the powers of darkness, the sooner we are ready to do our life work, to enter upon a career of service for God and man.—Ida Ahlborn Weeks.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

ALCOHOL AND THE SOLDIER.

Does the use of alcohol prevent a man from being a good soldier? Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart, dean of the medical faculty in Sydney, Australia, thinks that this question is a most pertinent one, and that it is the angle from which nations today should discuss the drink problem. He says that alcohol does prevent a man from being a good soldier and that military men and scientists have proved it. We quote:

"Alcohol is subversive of discipline, and robs a man of his prudence, judgment, conscientiousness and higher morality. The development of the human brain took countless years, but alcohol works a change quickly, and brings a man to the level of a beast in a few minutes. Alcohol has also had a great influence on the sexual passion, and the diseases which result are the shame and bane of the military authorities."

"I have seen 499 men in one day in one place. They all came from one military camp, and alcohol was the indirect cause of all their misery. When one man asks another, 'What is your poison?' he does not know how correctly in a scientific sense he is speaking."

OUTLOOK FOR DISTILLERS.

Mida's Criterion, leading spokesman of the whisky and wine trade, very sensibly tells the distillers that a prohibition future does not look so dark after all—and incidentally deals a blow to the compensation plan. We are glad to pass on this optimistic view, because once assure the distillers that they will lose no money through prohibition and we shall hear no more from them about "personal liberty." Says Mida's:

"In the next five years there will be an average of not under 5,000,000 motor cars in the United States. With eight miles to the gallon for fuel and 32 miles average per day would equal four gallons of fuel per day per car, or 20,000,000 gallons per day total, with a total of 7,000,000,000 gallons per year. Add to this 500,000 motor trucks averaging 10 gallons per day, we would have 1,750,000,000 gallons more, or a total of 8,750,000,000 gallons of fuel for the year. This would certainly tax the capacity of every distillery in the land, and, besides, denatured alcohol for fuel does not require a $1.10 per gallon tax from the government."

BEER AND WINE.

Alcoholized blood starves and taints the brain cells and allied nervous system. Psychic brain cells bathed in toxined blood do not give safety and logical surety to the movements of the mind. Alcoholics should be classed with the other poisons and their use as beverages discarded. Medical men have had testimony from laboratory, hospital, and fatal family pathologic lineage and sequence testimony against alcohol as an unsafe drink, forceful for harm beyond former estimate. Even in their mildest forms of dilution, as in wines, beers, and ales, alcoholics are not fit for the family table, the social club, or the public bar.—Dr. Charles F. Hughes, Editor of the Alienist and Neurologist.

"PERSONAL LIBERTY."

When Billy Sunday was conducting meetings in Milwaukee, he, according to custom, sent invitations to the large department stores and other industrial concerns to be present on special evenings. Inasmuch as Mr. Sunday always has something forceful to say concerning the liquor traffic, the brewers expressed their disapproval of the whole proceeding by asking Milwaukee business houses to forbid their employees attending the meetings. A manager of one of the department stores thought this too good to keep to himself. He had copies of the letter printed and on the reverse side an urgent invitation to the meetings, with comment on the brewers' particular brand of "personal liberty."

STRANGE UPRISING.

"A preacher said to me: 'Isn't it strange—this mighty uprising against the liquor evil?' I replied: 'The only strange thing about it is that any decent man, in view of what he has seen, should have hesitated to destroy it.' I resent the fact that my father and grandfather did not have sense and conscience enough to do it before I was born, so that I could have gone about my Father's business."

DOGS AS JAIL INMATES.

From the Portland (Ore.) Evening Express:

Nine months after the prohibition law went into effect, City Marshal Jack Carter of Marshfield, has no prisoners in the jail except four dogs, says the Portland Evening Telegram. From one of the wettest towns in the state this has become one of the driest and the marshal this week started a roundup of all the stray dogs in town. "There's nothing else to put in jail," he said, "and we might as well keep the Hotel-de-Carter open even if it's with dogs."

TERSELY AND FORCEFULLY PUT.

"Scientists have proved that alcohol, after its first exhilaration, is a form of 'knock-out drops' that puts the real, civilized man out of business, releasing the primitive, latent savage."

This pronouncement is from the "How to Be Healthy" department of the Chicago Herald, conducted by the Life Extension Institute. The institute is counseled by a large scientific board of eminent authorities, including Prof. Irving Fisher, chairman hygiene reference board; Gen. William C. Gorgas, consultant on sanitation.

NO DRINKERS NEED APPLY.

The Winton Motor Car company employs about 1,200 men in Cleveland, O., and almost as many in other cities. A rule barring drinking employees has been in force ever since the factory opened.

"We do not allow any man to enter our plant with liquor on his breath or to drink at any time, if we know it," says Mr. Winton, founder and president of the company.

"No well regulated plant can afford to employ men who drink. Men who use liquor cannot be at their best."

MOVING TO KANSAS.

The president of the Topeka Commercial club reports as a result of an investigation made by him that at least 2,000 families who have moved to Topeka from other states in the last ten years, including many of the city's best and most useful citizens, were influenced to make the change mainly because Kansas is a prohibition state and Topeka a dry city.

BUILDINGS IN USE.

Of 335 saloons in Portland, Ore., in 1915, only 21 are vacant. Many saloon shacks and shanties have been replaced by substantial buildings rented at increased rents.

FAVORS PROHIBITION.

The Western Retail Implement, Vehicle and Hardware association, with a membership of 4,200, has placed itself on record as favoring nation-wide prohibition.

The Quietness of God

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D. D.
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace.—1 Cor. 14:33.

Within the last two and a half years, many have had their faith shaken in the teachings of the Christian religion generally, and some have had their faith in God shaken. They ask insistently, "Is the God that we were taught to believe in, what we were taught? If there is a God, is he not just what other men are—swayed and controlled by what is transpiring in the world, or the universe, and governing his words thereby?"

A distinguished Christian nobleman of England has recently written a book entitled "The Silence of God," and after discussing the proposition, whether God, who is holy, infinitely powerful and unchangeable, can permit the present world-wide care to exist or not, he comes to the conclusion that God is the same as he was yesterday, and will be the same God forevermore.

Our topic is "The Quietness, or the Tranquillity of God." Is that justified? Is he just as quiet in the tribulations of the nations of the earth as he was when peace ruled supreme? We strongly believe so. Our text says, "God is not the God of confusion, but of peace," that is, he is an orderly God. His character is brought into contrast with the turbulent religious assemblies of emotional orientals. Never for a moment does God become excited, lose his head, or act hastily, or under passionate impulse. When David came to his best self, he saw that the steadfastness of Zion was secured by the fact that God dwelt in her, and therefore she could not be moved. That was what steadied Martin Luther and Melancthon in the stormy days of the Reformation, as they sang, "God Is Our Refuge and Strength," especially as they heard God speaking to their very souls, "Be still, and know that I am God."

A Vivid Contrast.

In the second Psalm, the raging nations are brought into vivid contrast with the quiet of God. God is sitting on the circle of the heavens and laughing, as though utterly indifferent, unconcerned by the earthly commotion. At one of the crucial moments in our national history, when the beloved Lincoln was stricken down, James A. Garfield, then a congressman, spoke in New York as to the dire event, and said: "The Lord reigneth; he is clothed with majesty, the government at Washington still lives."

This quiet of God is based on his infinite character. Nothing is more needed in these trying days of the shaking of nations, than the thought that God is sovereign, that he has majesty, is infinite in his power, holiness, goodness and truth; before him the nations are but as the small dust of the balance; he sets up kings and casts them down.

Can Man Attain This Quality?

Can this characteristic quality of God be transmitted to men? Can man be tranquil and quiet in the midst of human commotion, contention and battle? The days in which we are living are described by the Lord as those in which "men's hearts shall be failing them for fear and looking for those things which are coming on the earth." Three years ago, men were predicting the entering in of the day of universal brotherhood, of amity, of altruism, and as a consequence material prosperity, the wise diffusion of wealth and realizing millennial conditions, but now they are so overwhelmed with the facts that stare them in the face, that they are in consternation and confusion and fall into rage when asked to think about these things.

It is natural that the children of God should partake of his nature; consequently they may be quiet, if the link of faith is strong. Is it not true that God will keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on him? The voice of wisdom is the voice of God; and wisdom says, "Whoso harkens unto me shall dwell safely and shall be quiet from fear of evil."

Many of the children of God have testified to this quiet that comes from believing in his Word. The patient going to the operating table, or the soldier going into the battle, or the merchant seeing his property all being swept away from him, can remember that God is his friend and be quiet. The early Christians as they were thrown into the arena to be torn into pieces by the lions were quiet, and sang together to the honor of their Lord.

Today God is not excited. The wrath of the world is not confusing him, and he is just as really interested in the fall of the sparrow as he is in the adjusting of relationships of empires, kingdoms and republics. Be this my joy that evermore
Thou rulest all things at thy will,
Thy sovereign wisdom, I'll adore
And calmly, sweetly trust Thee still.

Satan hates the church and Sunday school;
Wishes you would stay away;
But 100 years from now
You'll be glad that you preferred
Your mother's prayers to Satan's pleas.

The Girl Who Had No God

"Ah!" said Elinor, and bent toward him.

"There is no longer any question that a band of desperadoes is terrorizing the county; an organized band of considerable intelligence. They get their information from the inside. This last outrage shows it. No one is safe."

"And this country club affair?" asked Elinor, watching Ward intently.

"An audacious piece of work. Half the women in this vicinity suffered. Most of them are my parishioners."

"Ah!" breathed Elinor. "I am sorry."

Ward shrugged his shoulders ruefully. "It means, I dare say, that the poor of the parish will get less than ever this year. Mrs. Bryant, for instance, who has always been generous, lost a pearl necklace and a wonderful pear-shaped pink pearl."

"Is she a wealthy woman?"

"Very, I believe."

"Then is it such a terrible thing for her to lose the pearl? Perhaps these bandits, as you call them, think they could use these things better than the people who owned them."

Ward smiled. "I daresay we all think we could use the other fellow's possessions better than he does."

Elinor persisted, frowning a little.

"Things are so terribly mixed up," she said. "If you could know the things that I know—Ward looked faintly amused—"the people who are fighting for a principle, and have nothing to fight with, fighting for life sometimes! A good half of the world, you know, just struggles along, and the other half is so smug, so satisfied; it's—its horrible."

Mr. Ward stared at her.

"How in the world do you come by such thoughts?" he demanded.

"I've never known anything else; I was brought up on the injustice of things. You have your poor here in the parish, but you see I was brought up with the poor of all the world. I am afraid I'm always for the under dog."

Rather startled was Rev. Mr. Ward that summer afternoon on the terrace at the Hall, startled and puzzled.

"Down in our hearts," he said, "perhaps we are all of us for the under dog. But how does that excuse my bandits?"

"This Mrs. Bryant—how much do you suppose you are going to lose for your poor by her loss?"

"Not so much, but enough. She had promised a lot of things. She called up this morning to say that it was all off. He started to say that all bets were off, but decided that it was unclerical and changed it. 'But I didn't come here to worry you about myself or the parish. I think you should not be here alone."

Elinor looked down over the village. "Then perhaps, after all, it would be better if I married at once."

"Ah! You are to be married?"

"Now that my father is gone," said Elinor wistfully. "It seems the best thing. And—I should like children. I have no friends, except perhaps you."

Ward strove to keep his voice steady, and matter-of-fact.

"Marriage is so serious—so vital a thing." He was trying to be calm and judicial. But his voice sounded far off; his heart pounded in his ears. "To marry because one is alone, or needs friends—is a flimsy foundation to build on."

Once again Elinor surprised him.

"There have been few really great passions in the world," she said. "I could almost count them on my fingers. The rest of us seem to get along without."

"Perhaps there are more than we hear about. Every now and then, in my work, I come across something so much greater than I had expected, self-sacrifice, love, charity, as to justify my faith in mankind."

"Your faith?" Elinor said softly.

"That is what I envy you—your faith. Not only your faith in your kind, but—the other sort."

Faith, hope and charity—and the greatest of these is faith. Alas for old Hilary, who had not kept his!

"I had a governess once who had that sort of faith; it was a great comfort to her. But I sit here on my hill-side, and it seems to me that spread out at my feet is all the injustice and cruelty and hatred in the world. And your God allows it all. My father tried to believe—tried hard, but he said that when he asked for bread they gave him a stone."

"Do you know who said that?"

"My father," said Elinor.

Rather surprised, he let it go at that.

So great had the urgency of Boroday's position become that the band met at the hall on Thursday of the week after the country-club affair. Lethbridge was to get his instructions; Talbot wished to discuss his prospect.

After dinner, the night being warm, they had their coffee on the terrace.

A summer storm had come up. All at once a flash threatened Saint Jude's.

Huff leaped to his feet.

"I've got it!" he said. "What is it they call the big building back of the church?"

None of the men knew. It was, as a matter of fact, the parish house. Lethbridge, however, knew its function.

"Fine prospect that!" he drawled. "That's where the Sunday school is held, and where they keep the plated knives and forks for the church suppers."

"It's a darned fine building," said Huff. "What would they do if it burned down?"

They were too unfamiliar with church affairs to hazard a guess. Elinor, who had been sitting silent, suddenly voiced an objection to Huff's unspoken plan.

"There must be some other way," she said. "The children—they have sewing classes and entertainments for the children there. It's the parish house."

"If lightning struck the parish house tonight—" Huff said quite eagerly.

"This is Thursday. By Sunday morning they would be taking up a whacking big collection to rebuild it."

The idea had taken hold of his imagination. Even the suggestion that a large part of the offertory might be in checks mattered not. But Elinor was obdurate.

"You can do it some place else," she said. "Not here. They struggled very hard to build the church and they need money now. Mr. Ward told me—"

Huff turned on her jealousy.

"Ward—that's the preacher chap?"

"He is the assistant rector," Elinor replied with dignity.

"He's been coming here, then?"

"Twice. Once when father died, and once to warn me against all of you." Not that she had forgotten that few minutes in the garden, under the moon; but that had been an accident—hardly a call.

Talbot chuckled. But Huff was thinking hard. Elinor had been different lately, a little softer. Ward represented all that the men Elinor knew were not—law to their violence, order to their disorder. There was almost a snarl in his voice.

"He'd better stay down in his valley with his old women," he said, "and leave you alone. You don't need him."

"I'm not so sure of that," Elinor replied quietly, and left him staring. . . .

Huff burned the parish house the next night. He did it himself, without the assistance of the band. Into it he put not only the devilish ingenuity of long experience, but his new hatred of Ward.

Church property is always easy of access. It was the work of five minutes to crawl through a basement window and of half an hour to make his preparations.

He looked at his watch when he had finished. It was just midnight. In two hours, or before the fire began, he would be back in the city, establishing his alibi.

The fire-whistles in the village awakened Elinor at something after three o'clock. All of her room was filled with the red glare of the burning parish house. Old Henriette knocked at her door.

"The church is burning down in the valley," she called. "It's a grand sight."

Elinor was throwing on her clothing. She must see Ward. She would sell her pearls. She would build a new parish house. She said this over and over to herself as she struggled down the hill.

A new parish house, better than the old, with plenty of room for the children to play in! At least it was night, and the children safe in their beds; thank God for that! She was too disturbed to notice that she had thanked the God in whom she did not believe.

The fire had gained too much headway to be checked. All the efforts of the volunteer department and the small engine were directed toward saving the church. For a time it seemed as if Saint Jude's must go.

Elinor watched the destruction. It seemed as though a band had fastened itself around her chest. Then she saw Ward. He was on the ridge-pole of the church roof with a hatchet. The ridge-pole was burning slowly. She could see him chopping.

From that time she never took her eyes away from him. Other men were there. She did not see them. She saw only Ward battling on the ridge-pole, and high—above on the steeple the sturdy cross of his faith.

Once the men on the street below turned the full force of the hose on him. She saw him reel, saw him recover himself by a miracle.

The fire glared died into the dawn. Saint Jude's was saved. Behind it in its park the charred skeleton of the parish house showed how thoroughly young Huff had done his work. Not until Ward had descended safely to the street did Elinor relax.

Ward found her sitting in one of the chairs along the pavement, her hair still in its long braid, her feet thrust into slippers, her eyes red from long staring.

The fire engine was being dragged away. The crowd had dispersed.

Ward, blackened and depressed, was surveying the ruins with a heavy heart. He turned and saw the girl.

"You see," he said, "what an hour may bring forth!" And then, "You reckless child, here in slippers!"

"I saw you on the roof," said Elinor, barely able to articulate. "Once I thought you had fallen."

"They nearly got me. It's rather sad, isn't it?" He stood, bareheaded in the cool dawn, and surveyed the ruin.

People meet great crises simply. She tried to find some word of sympathy to say, but what was there, poor child? She knew the true inwardness of that disastrous night. So, with pathetic eyes, she turned away.

"I'll go home now," she said. "I saw the glare—I—" Quite suddenly her lips trembled. "I should like to help you with the new building."

"Fine!" said Ward heartily. "We'll get to that before long."

"If you had fallen—"

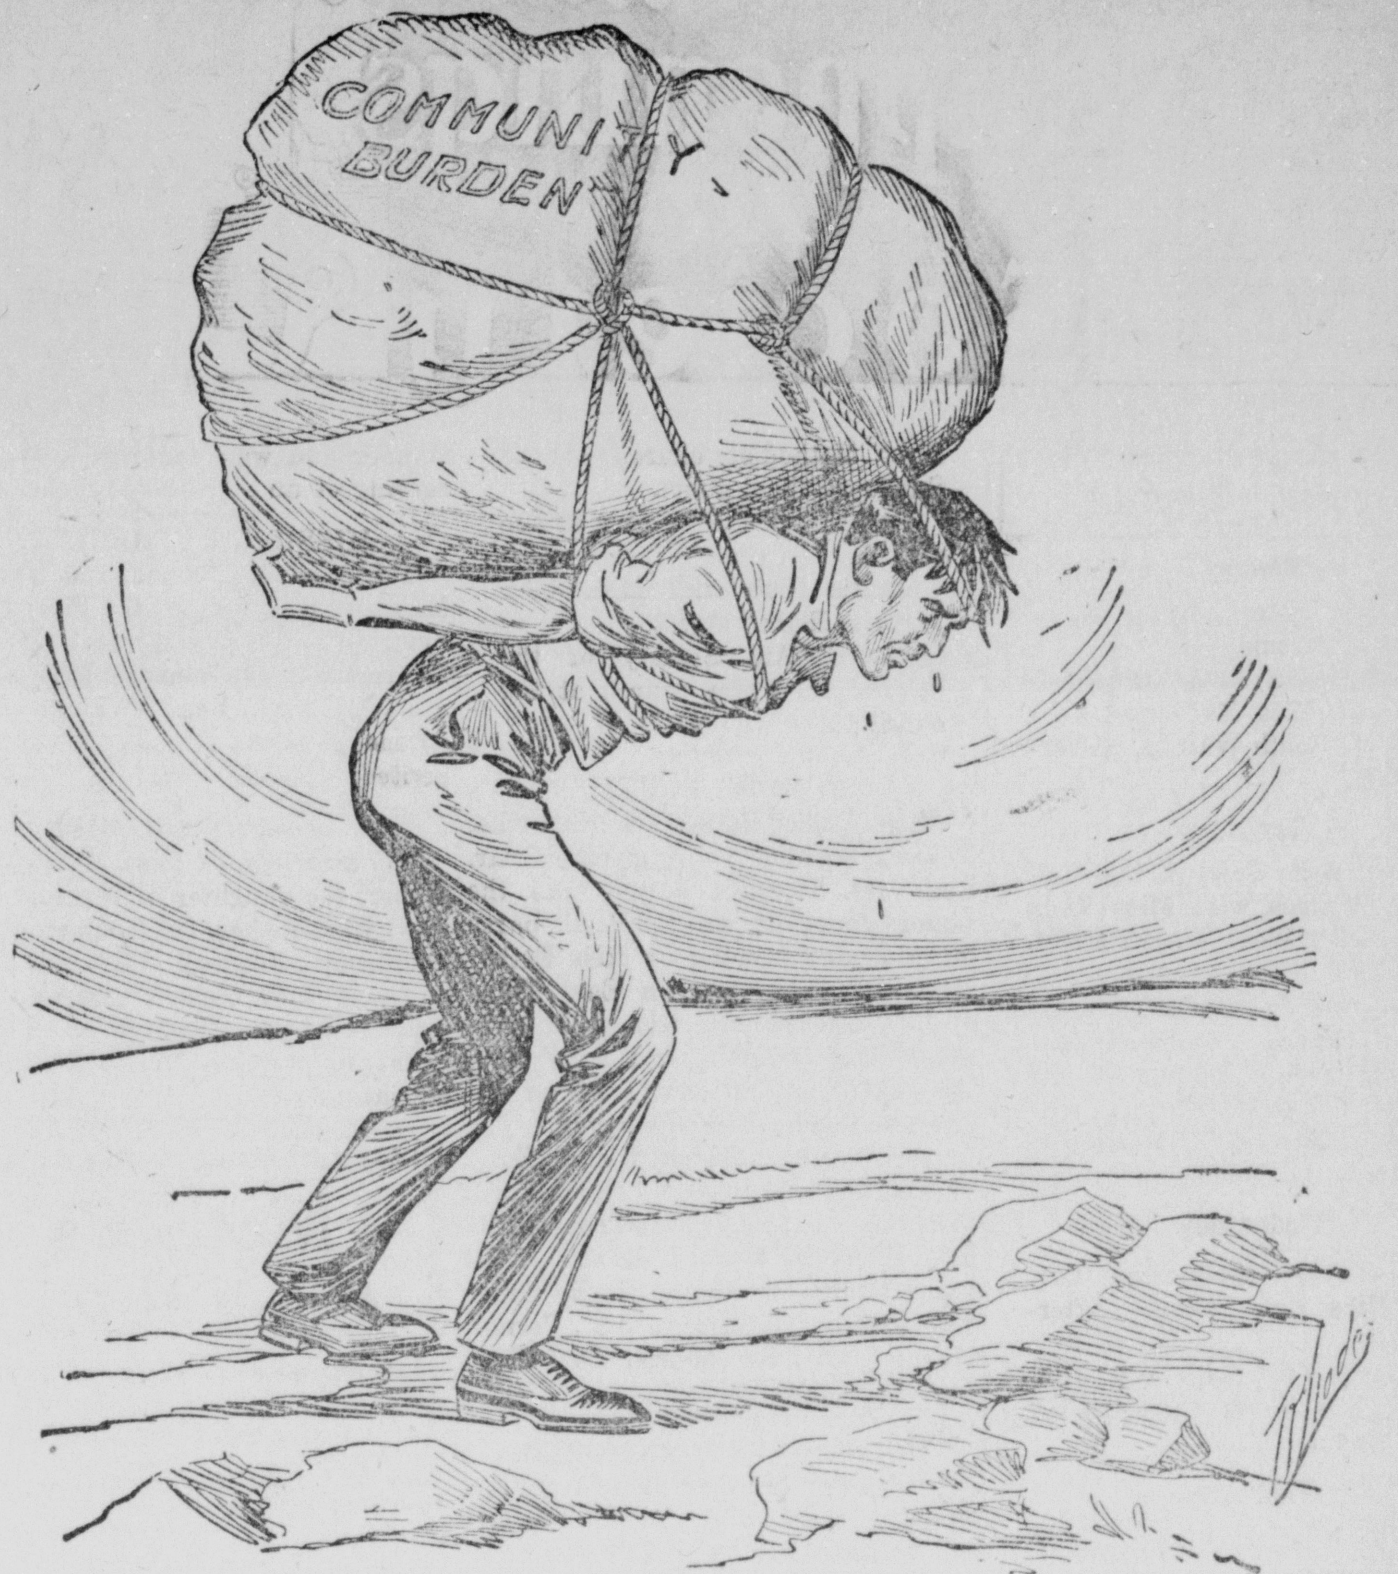

He was not listening. It came to her then how far apart they were. To her his falling would have been an end of all things; to him, it would have meant the beginning of a useful eternity.

"If you wait a little, I'll run around and get my car and take you up."

She sat down again, obediently. She was glad to be with him a little longer.

Until recently, the work of the band had always seemed a vague abstraction. Now one of its results lay before her: And there were other things fresh in her mind—old Hilary, dead of his revolt against law, and lying in state before an altar erected to a God he had not recognized. And Ward, watching her windows and thinking her the embodiment of what a woman should be.

The Community Burden

WHAT are you and I doing to lighten our Community's Burden? Are we piling on the back of our Community indifference and neglect? Are we holding back our patronage? If so, we are adding to the Burden. We are making it heavy. But if we are generously giving our Community our loyal support, then we are doing our share in making the Burden light. We can so direct our thoughts, words and actions as to lighten that Load. Don't break the back of your own community. Do what you can to lighten the load.

Mother's Cook Book

We, ignorant of ourselves, Beg often our own harm, which the wise Powers Deny us for our good; so find we profit By losing of our prayers. —Shakespeare.

Seasonable Dishes.

A tasty sandwich is made by mixing a few finely chopped olives with a little cottage cheese. The bread need not be buttered for these sandwiches. Onion Sandwich.—Soak for an hour finely cut Bernaudas in ice water which has been well sweetened and salted. Drain and mix with slightly seasoned mayonnaise. Serve on rounds of buttered bread.

Ham finely chopped and mixed with chopped pickles or olives makes a change from the ordinary ham sandwich.

Iced Cocoa.

Boil a half cupful of cocoa, three-quarters of a cupful of sugar, and one cupful of water to make a rich sirup. Put this in a jar on ice and it is ready to serve at a moment's notice. Add a tablespoonful of the sirup to a glass of cold milk.

Mint Jelly Sauce.

Combine a cupful of currant or any tart jelly, beaten with the juice of one orange and a half cupful of finely minced mint. Let stand in a cold place for an hour before using.

Rhubarb Marmalade.

Allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar to each pound of rhubarb. Cut in short lengths without peeling, cook slowly, stirring often to keep it from sticking or burning. After an hour place in the jars in the usual way.

Strawberries Preserved Whole.

Crush two quarts of strawberries, using the small ones, and simmer gently for twenty minutes, then strain. Allow a pound of sugar to a pint of juice. Heat the sugar and add the juice as soon as it is strained. Return to the stove and boil until thick, skimming carefully when necessary. Fill hot glasses with hulled fine berries and cover with the boiling sirup, then put on the sterilized covers.

Pineapples and strawberries is a combination well liked. Cut the pineapple in dice and add twice as many strawberries. Fill the jars with this mixture using the usual amount of sugar in cooking.

E. A. Remy, assistant deputy in the secretary of state's office, came here this afternoon to spend Sunday with his family. Beginning with the first of this month a half holiday is declared for Saturday at the state house and will continue during the summer months. Mr. Remy was called to Richmond this week for consultation regarding the Republican organization work for the special election to be held in the Sixth congressional district. The election is called to select a successor to the late Judge Comstock, who was elected at the November election.

War Service of Y. M. C. A. Requires Vast Expenditure

The service which the Y. M. C. A. is planning to give the selective national army in its cantonments is going to require 1,100 secretaries and $3,000,000 of which nearly $2,000,000 has already been paid in or pledged. It is to be noted that an army of 1,000,000 men, which the 200 buildings the Y. M. C. A. proposes to erect will accommodate, will require an equipment of 200 pianos and piano players, 268,000 feet of films a day, 3,000,000 sheets of writing paper daily, 10,000 pens a day and a barrel of ink, 95 automobiles and trucks, 200 moving-picture machines, 200 graphophones and 10,000 records, 40,000 pounds of ice per day, a Bible to every man, magazines by the hundred tons.

Facts in Figures.

Hawaii has two mountains 14,000 feet high.
United States received 298,000 immigrants last year.
Turlock, Cal., will can 25,000 tons of peaches this year.
Wilmington, Cal., is to have a $5,000,000 shipbuilding plant.
United States in 1916 exported $150,000,000 worth of leather.
Southern California is gathering $1,000,000 a day from tourists.
United States last year exported glass bottles valued at $2,500,000.
Glenn county, California, will devote 14,123 acres of land to rice-growing.

"Women's Town" in France.

A new "women's town" in the Valley of the Romanche, a few miles from Grenoble, is one of the evolutions of the "munitions campaign" in France. An important electric iron works employing 300 men before the war was called upon to treble its force on contracts for the government. Half its working force had been mobilized. Women from the region took the absent men's places, but for the new requirements no help was available. The minister of munitions agreed to find elsewhere woman workers for the requirements, but there was no place to lodge them. Exposition buildings from the Lyons sample fair were shipped to the spot, forming the nucleus of a new "women's town," that has developed into a modern village of nearly 1,000 population, with bath, reception grounds and all modern comforts.

Why Pay Rent?

When the same money paid in monthly in the New Building and Loan Association will buy you a home of your own?

Get out of the rent rut. Have one place at least where you are the boss.

Impossible, you say? Don't talk that way until you have consulted us. We will make you a most liberal loan and help you in every way to secure a home of your own.

Remember, your money you pay in to us earns interest, which is applied to the amount of your loan. Thus your money is working for you, and not for any landlord.

The time to start is now. Come in and talk the matter over with us. We are at your service.
